HUMAN RIGHTS DENIED: THE NEED FOR A UNITED NATION'S CONVENTION ON THE RIGHTS OF OLDER PERSONS IN THE 2020'S

Margaret Gillis, Founding President of the International Longevity Centre Canada

The last two years have shown that the human rights of older persons have been disregarded as evidenced by the huge impact of the pandemic, climate change and social change. This discussion will look at the last two years and show how a legally binding instrument (a Convention) could address the erosion of human rights by addressing ageism.

CANADIANS AGAINST AGEISM

Kiran Rabheru MD, CCFP, FRCP, DABPN

*Geriatric Psychiatrist, TOH, Professor of Psychiatry, U of Ottawa
Chair, Steering Group, GAROP and Chair of the Board, ILC-Canada*

Canadians Against Ageism is a comprehensive Canada-wide project to combat ageism against older people, while strengthening, protecting, and promoting their human rights. The International Longevity Centre of Canada (ILC-Canada) will lead this project in partnership with the International Federation on Aging (IFA), working in close collaboration with several Canadian and international organizations and involving multiple stakeholders. The interventions targeting ageism in Canada will be based on three evidence-based strategies outlined in the World Health Organization Global Report on Ageism, namely imparting education across the lifespan, enhancing intergenerational relations, and influencing policy and laws.

11:45 am - 12:30 pm

FUTURE US: A ROAD MAP TO THE PREVENTION OF ELDER ABUSE PAN-CANADIAN ENGAGEMENT STRATEGY

Bénédicte Schoepflin

Executive Director, Canadian Network for the Prevention of Elder Abuse (CNPEA)

Margaret MacPherson, Research Associate, Centre for Research and Education on Violence Against Women and Children

On March 24, CNPEA is launching Future Us, a roadmap to elder abuse prevention. This community engagement strategy examines where we are now and where we need to go to strengthen prevention across the country. It provides clear goals and recommendations so that we can all participate at the individual, community, and government levels to build an integrated approach for elder abuse prevention across communities and across Canada.

This presentation will provide an overview of Future Us with ideas for how you can help in making large social change with concrete practical actions.
